

13th International Conference on Malicious and Unwanted Software (MALCON 2018)

Scholarship Program

Description:

The 13th International Conference on Malicious and Unwanted Software, see <https://www.malwareconference.org>, is happy to announce its 2018 scholarship program. The program targets underrepresented groups, women, and people of color interested in the security field. The scholarship provides the following benefits:

- 100% Free Registration
- Breakfast, Lunch, and attendance to the “Best Paper Award” gala dinner; and
- Attendance to all sessions, keynote, and panels.
- Accommodations October 21st through October 24th, 2018.

This scholarship is open to students from the local institutions of higher learning. Five scholarships are available.

How to Apply?

1. Send an application letter that includes:
 - a. Full name, address, and email
 - b. Student Status, i.e., Graduate or Undergraduate
 - c. Expected Graduation Date
 - d. If graduate student, a short description of your current work; and
 - e. A brief paragraph as to the reason you want to attend the Malware Conference
2. Include a copy of your resume.

Where to Apply?

Send your application package electronically to the Malware Conference General Program Chair, Dr. Fernando C. Colon Osorio, at the address below:

fcco@wssrl.org

Awards will be announced on or before Tuesday, October 16th, 2018